

The last thing the FCC should do is change the NO CALL List rules to make it less effective. Really it should be made more restrictive yet with bigger and tougher fines for those that violate it. A teleamakerter's phone call is the most annoying because they always call over the dinner hour or in the evening when a person is trying to eat dinner, relax, or enjoy their family. If I want their product I'll call them, if I need their service I'll find them in the yellow pages. NOW the Fcc NEEDS to add cell phones to the no call list also. I don't need to pay to have them call me. Cell phone charge are paid by the phone owner and no calls are free, they cost minutes which cost money! Maake the NO CALL LIST tougher!!!!!! Then enforce it with big fines!
